Vox Energy Solutions Wins 2010 Tech 50 Green Technology Award

(Pittsburgh, PA) October 15, 2010 – Vox Energy Solutions, Western Pennsylvania's only full-service renewable energy solutions provider, has been selected as the winner of the Green Technology category for the Pittsburgh Technology Council's prestigious annual Tech 50 awards.

Each year, the Tech 50 honors southwestern Pennsylvania's most successful and innovative technology companies. The awards represent transformative technology centers of excellence with companies at all stages of growth, as well as the industry's top executives. This year's awards ceremony was held at the Hilton Pittsburgh on October 14.

The Green Technology category included companies that use technology to create products that improve operations, increase efficiency and promote sustainability while reducing energy consumption, waste, pollution and operations costs. Vox Energy Solutions was among four elite finalists in this category. This was Vox Energy Solutions' first Tech 50 entry and award.

"It is both honor and a thrill to have been recognized for our contribution in what we feel is such an important effort by such a worthwhile organization. We constantly strive to provide superior alternative energy solutions to our customers to help make the world a 'greener 'place,'" said Karen Foltz, Founder and Vice President of Vox Energy Solutions.

About the Pittsburgh Technology Council

The Pittsburgh Technology Council is the first and largest regional technology trade association in the United States with more than 1,400 member companies in southwestern Pennsylvania. The Council's mission is to contribute to the success of the region's technology businesses by focusing on developing the economic strength of several industry clusters, including information technology, life sciences, advanced manufacturing, advanced materials and environmental technology.
